For my score, I got a 38, so therefore my results suggest “a growth mindset but with some fixed ideas” I agree with it. I am working toward expanding my mindset and creating a more open perspective. Especially with the year 2020, everyone’s mindset has been announced and shown. Someone’s mindset will always affect the outlook of the future, it can change but it's up to you. With how the world is right now, it will certainly affect moving forward. Politics and the way of living are under the hand of all type mindsets. When having a conversation with someone who’s beliefs and ideas are complete opposites, it can be hard to listen with a clear mind. It's difficult to take in both perspectives and that is something I need to work on too. It would be beneficial for people to have a more open mindset and listen to each other. Almost impossible, because we will always have some fixed ideas. Fixed ideas can shift when leaning towards a more open mindset. However, you will always have a foundation on what you think is right or wrong, which will differ with others.
