

Before I took the quiz, I already had an idea of what type of learner I was. A long time ago, somewhere in middle school, we took a similar quiz. I ended up with Visual and Tactical tied, and so I was curious if things have changed and if I veered off to one or the other. The funny thing is that I got the same results I got 8 years ago. I'm 40% Visual and 40% Tactical. I agree with it and am a bit surprised that I didn't shift to tactical than visual. I already think the course is a mixture of both visual and tactical and so I don't have too many worries about the class and its process.